Conference Presenters

Erin Merryn is author of Stolen Innocence and Living For Today, both memoirs about incest and rape. It was Erin Merryn's voice that was silenced when she was ages 6-8 and 11-13 when two men she knew and trusted sexually assaulted and raped her. It was her voice that lead her out of a destructive path of nightmares, flashbacks, panic attacks, self-injury, suicide attempts, and an eating disorder—a voice that describes a place in her life she never imagined, of forgiveness towards the men that killed her innocence and a law to educate children on what she herself never knew. She shares a message about safe touches, unsafe touches, safe secrets, unsafe secrets, how to get away and how to tell today. Erin leaves her audience inspired, moved by her courage and strength, motivated and educated on how to break the silence that surrounds child abuse. From her we learn how to work with abused kids, help a friend who has been abused, how to talk to children about sexual abuse, often helping them to shatter their silence for the first time.

Karen A. Duncan, M.A., LSW is a national speaker, author and educator known professionally for her work in the field of child sexual abuse and family violence. For thirty years she has provided therapeutic programs to women, children and families while promoting the prevention of these traumas within families and communities. Her newest book on female sexual predators helps to dispel the myth that only males commit sexual offenses and challenges all of us to look beyond gender stereotypes in the protection of our children and the understanding of sexual victimization and offending. Karen is a member of the Editorial Board for the Journal of Mental Health Counseling and speaks throughout the United States and Canada. As an Indiana native she brings her engaging personality and years of experience to the field of prevention education and awareness. She is the author of Healing from the Trauma of Childhood Sexual Abuse: The Journey of Women (Praeger Publishing, 2004) and a contributor to an upcoming book The Handbook of Child Sexual Abuse: Prevention, Assessment and Treatment published by John Wiley and Sons (2011).

Boys and Men Healing is a documentary about the impact the sexual abuse of boys has on both the individual and society, and the importance of healing and speaking out for male survivors to end the devastating effects. The film portrays courageous non-offending men whose arduous healing helped them reclaim their lives—while giving them a powerful voice to speak out, and take bold action toward prevention for other boys. Boys and Men Healing is produced in association with the International Documentary Association.

AEquitas' (['ekwītäs]; EH-qui-tahs) mission is to improve the quality of justice in sexual assault, domestic violence, stalking, and dating violence cases by developing, evaluating, and refining prosecution practices that increase victim safety and offender accountability. The complex and unique dynamics of these crimes against women demand a nuanced response by prosecutors and a broader concept of what constitutes justice in these cases. In addition to offender accountability, the best possible outcomes must include consideration of the victim's history, experience, and perspective; the impact of the criminal justice process on the victim, and, where relevant, the victim's children and family; and the impact on the victim's workplace and community.

Peace Learning Center (PLC) is an Indianapolis-based community educational institution promoting healthy learning, workplace and community environments. PLC establishes safe and common ways to address differences and promotes processes to help build community and healthy communication for youth, parents and professionals. Started in 1997 in Eagle Creek Park, PLC has reached more than 130,000 people locally and internationally.

HEARTLAND ALLIANCE for Human Needs & Human Rights

coercion to exploit a person for profit. Trafficking is becoming one of the most lucrative transnational crimes after the illicit trade in drugs and arms, affecting anywhere from 12.3 million to 27 million victims around the world at any given time. Each year thousands of persons are trafficked across borders, while many more are trafficked within their own countries. Victims of trafficking are often vulnerable and targeted due to their gender, poverty, and lack of social and political power, preyed upon with the promise of a better life. Those living in conflict and post-conflict situations find themselves especially vulnerable to human trafficking due to the rise in crime and the breakdown in law and order resulting in impunity for perpetrators. Victims are exploited for labor or sex work or both, and the majority are women and girls trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. Heartland Alliance offers support to victims of trafficking through several programs.

Detective James Starks retired from the Kentucky State Police after 27 years of service. He has been a dispatcher, uniform patrol officer, undercover organized crime detective, undercover narcotics detective, and general investigations detective. Detective Starks had a 95+% confession rate and therefore was able to assist the prosecutors in plea bargaining for exceptionally long prison sentences. During his last 15 years with Kentucky State Police, he specialized in child sexual abuse investigations.

Karen A. Iseminger, Ph.D., FNP is the Director of Ethics Integration for St. Vincent Health. As director, Karen is responsible for coordinating ethics resources and functions including providing consultative services to St. Vincent Health clinicians, patients, families and leadership.
